NOTES

- Nothing runs on the server. It simply acts as a shared location for the program files. It requires approximately 135MB of disk space.
- The program runs in the memory space of the clients. The minimum RAM in each client is 512MB, although more is recommended if analyzing large amounts of data.
- The 32-bit version will run on both 32-bit and 64-bit clients. The 64-bit version will only run on 64-bit clients. Since nothing runs on the server, the only server requirement is space on a shared disk.
- The activation process creates a main license file named sgc.usr which is a text file containing the serial number, product key, and activation code. It also creates small files named “sguser1.log”, “sguser2.log”, etc. which control the number of simultaneous users.
- The activation code entered must match the Product Key displayed on the License Manager dialog box, which is different for each installation.
- The field at the very bottom of the License Manager dialog box is not normally used. It can be used if you wish to install the executable in 2 locations and share a single license file. If so, complete the first installation as described above. Then install the program again in a second location. When you activate the second installation, use the extra field to specify the location in which the FIRST installation placed its license files.
